

JANUARY 2019 News Letter

The Activity Department would like to take this opportunity to thank all who have volunteered over the past year in various activities. We wouldn't have been as successful without your dedication to our department. We look forward to another successful year in Activities.

A big thank you to all those who donated towards the Christmas craft and bake sale, It was a huge success again this year. Your time and generosity is very much appreciated and I look forward to the next adventure with you all by my side

...From all of us in the Activity Department of Ayre Manor

We wish you all a Happy, Healthy 2019.

ROBBIE BURNS DAY

Robert Burns (25 January 1759 – 21 July 1796) (also known as Robbie Burns, Scotland's favorite son, the Ploughman Poet, the Bard of Ayrshire and in Scotland as simply The Bard) was a poet and a lyricist. He is widely regarded as the national poet of Scotland, and is celebrated worldwide. He is the best known of the poets who have written in the Scots language, although much of his writing is also in English and a 'light' Scots dialect, accessible to an audience beyond Scotland. He also wrote in standard English, and in these pieces, his political or civil commentary is often at its most blunt.

He is regarded as a pioneer of the Romantic movement and after his death became a great source of inspiration to the founders of both liberalism and socialism. A cultural icon in Scotland and among the Scottish Diaspora around the world, celebration of his life and work became almost a national charismatic cult during the 19th and 20th centuries, and his influence has long been strong on Scottish literature.

A Burns supper is a celebration of the life and poetry of the poet Robert Burns, author of many Scots poems including "Auld Lang Syne," which is generally sung as a folk song at Hogmanay and other New Year celebrations around the world. The suppers are normally held on or near the poet's birthday, January 25, sometimes known as Burns night, although they may in principle be held at any time of the year.
